

May 22, 2008

Al Fresco at Scarpetta, Brunch at Persephone, Nanoosh Picnic Delivery, Pay What We Pay at Country!

It's hard to believe that the unofficial arrival of summer is here. While many of you will be embarking on journeys near and far, this Strong (weekend) Buzz is devoted to those who are remaining in the city, with plenty of outdoor eating ideas included. Wherever you find yourself this weekend, have a great one!

Sunday: Have your Picnic in the Park Delivered to You!

I've always been a fan of picnicking in Central Park. I tend to like the area around Turtle Pond. The only problem is I'm not a fan of all the schlepping of the makings of lunch. But Nanoosh Organic Mediterranean Hummus Bar (2012 Broadway at 69th street, 212-362-7922) is taking the schlepping out of your summer picnic experience, delivering a full menu of eats from 11am – 11pm daily to Central Park at either West 75th or West 65th Street entrance. The entire menu is available for delivery—hummus platters, wraps, kebabs, salads, and more. For groups of 4, Nanoosh offers a special Dip Picnic Tray that includes hummus, tahini, lebane, carrots, celery, broccoli, and pita for $23.95. Bring your own bottle of wine and you're all set.

And that's your Strong (weekend) Buzz! Don't forget to check in with The Strong Buzz every day for more news, reviews and events!

Andrea Strong